BNM launches tokenised bond, sukuk platform with round-the-clock settlement

Malaysia has launched a platform for issuing, holding, and safekeeping ownership of tokenised bonds and sukuk with round-the-clock payment and settlement services.

The platform dubbed SSDS+ is designed to simplify transactions, enable greater flexibility in the design of financial instruments, and broaden access to investment opportunities, Bank Negara Malaysia (BNM) said in a statement. The platform was developed in-house, the central bank noted.

SSDS+ manages tokenised securities transfer and ownership records of digital securities, while the integration with Rentas+ facilitates the corresponding secure transfer of payments for bond purchases in central bank money, BNM said.

Tokenisation mainly refers to securities and the rights associated with them as digital tokens on a ledger. For bonds and sukuk, tokenisation allows ownership and transfers to be recorded digitally using distributed ledger technology, which maintains a shared record across a network. – The Edge Malaysia

Fadillah: Malaysia seeks to lead Islamic finance transition, boost investment

Malaysia aims to spearhead the transition towards greater use of Islamic finance to drive cross-border investment, supported by stronger ties with emerging markets, said Deputy Prime Minister Datuk Seri Fadillah Yusof.

He said Asean has a large Muslim population, a growing middle class, dynamic economies and a thriving halal ecosystem.

"As we deepen ties with the Gulf Cooperation Council, South Asia, Africa and other emerging corridors, Islamic finance can become the engine of cross-border investment.

"It can finance infrastructure, empower small and medium enterprises, accelerate the energy transition, strengthen food security and power our digital future; and Malaysia intends to lead this transition," he said in his opening speech at the 21st Kuala Lumpur Islamic Finance Forum 2026 (KLIFF 2026) here on Tuesday.

Fadillah, who is also the minister of energy transition and water transformation, noted that across Asean, Islamic financial assets have more than doubled within a decade, from US$468 billion in 2014 to US$954 billion in 2024. – The Edge Malaysia

10-year Treasury yield moves lower after weak housing data

The 10-year Treasury note yield fell on Tuesday as investors digested more economic data and continued to assess the inflationary backdrop ahead of the Federal Reserve's interest rate decision next week.

The benchmark yield was down more than 2 basis points at 5.115%, while the 30-year Treasury bond fell more than 4 basis points to 5.426%. Meanwhile, the 2-year Treasury note yield was up more than 2 basis points at 4.785%.

Yields initially moved lower after housing starts for September missed expectations, coming in at 1.22 million versus the 1.3 million that economists polled by Dow Jones called for. September's reading marked a 5.2% decrease from August's revised estimate.

"The weakness in housing starts is not surprising given the surveys showing deep pessimism on the part of homebuilders given the shortage of labor from Washington's immigration policies and the geopolitical risks kicking up inflation and the cost of building materials," said Chris Rupkey, chief economist at FWDBONDS. "It is not winter yet but housing is going into a deep freeze."

Investors are awaiting other economic data releases this week, including Thursday's release of weekly initial jobless claims. – CNBC
